Independent trials in Benin, Burkina Faso, Tanzania and Ivory Coast have proven the efficacy

LIMBURGERHOF, Germany, July 13, 2017/

- WHO recommendation for game-changing mosquito net.
- First bed net to contain non-pyrethroid chemistry.
- Collaboration with IVCC and London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine unlocks breakthrough

BASF (www.BASF.com) has received a recommendation from the World Health Organ Interceptor® G2, a long-las

Working with the Innovative Vector Control Consortium (IVCC) and the London School of Hygiene & Tro

Dave Malone, IVCC Technical Manager, said "The collaboration with BASF gave us access to an insec

A second chlorfenapyr product, an indoor residual spray, named Sylando 240SC, is also in final phases of WHO evaluation.

Around the world, every two minutes a child dies from malaria and there are more than 200 million new

Long-lasting insecticide-treated mosquito nets (LN) and indoor residual sprays (IRS) are the cornerston

Independent trials in Benin, Burkina Faso, Tanzania and Ivory Coast have proven the efficacy of Interc

Medical entomologist Professor Hilary Ranson from the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine has studi

Following the WHO recommendation, BASF will start preparations to launch Interceptor G2 for malaria

"New resistance management products are desperately needed to prevent mosquito-borne diseases a

About chlorfenapyr
Chlorfenapyr was derived by isolating a toxin from the Streptomyces fumanus actinomycete bacterium.

About BASF's Crop Protection division
With a rapidly growing population, increasingly dependent on crop protection to develop and ma

About BASF
At BASF (www.BASF.com), we create chemistry for a sustainable future. We combine e

SOURCE
BASF

Multimedia content

- Download logo

- Image: Interceptor® G2 from BASF is the first WHO-recommended mosquito net based on non-pyrethroid chemistry to beat insecticide-resistant mosquitoes. Its distinctive black and white stripes distinguish it from currently used mosquito nets. Volker Frenz, development chemist for Interceptor® G2, checks a net sample in the laboratory. Photo – Andres/BASF

- Image: Interceptor® G2 from BASF is the first WHO-recommended mosquito net based on non-pyrethroid chemistry to beat insecticide-resistant mosquitoes. Its distinctive black and white stripes distinguish it from currently used products. Photo – Andres/BASF

- Image: Interceptor® G2 from BASF is the first WHO-recommended mosquito net based on non-pyrethroid chemistry to beat insecticide-resistant mosquitoes. Its distinctive black and white stripes distinguish it from currently used products. Photo – Andres/BASF

- Image: Mosquitoes are the most dangerous animal on earth – transmitting diseases such as malaria, dengue, Zika and yellow fever and causing more deaths than any other creature. Photo – Hantzschel/BASF

- Image: There are more than 200 million cases of malaria each year and almost half a million deaths. Infants, children under five and pregnant women are the most vulnerable groups. Photo – Lassen/BASF

- Image: There are more than 200 million cases of malaria each year and almost half a million deaths. Infants, children under five and pregnant women are the most vulnerable groups. Most cases occur in Africa, but other regions are significantly affected: Latin America, South East Asia, Western Pacific and Eastern Mediterranean. Photo – Hantzschel/BASF